KILLER OF ROSS FACES FEDERAL JURY'S CHARGE

CHICAGO, Jan. 31—(UP)—A grand jury indictment against John Henry Seadlund, confessed kidnaper-slayer of Charles S. Ross, was returned today in the Court of U. S. District Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

The second count of the indictment said Seadlund "acting with James Atwood Gray did bodily harm to Charles S. Ross."

The defendant transported Charles S. Ross from Emily, Minn., to a place at or near Spooner, Wis., where he did bodily harm to him and inflicted injuries on his body, from which such injuries on Oct. 19, 1937, the said Charles S. Ross did die," the indictment read.

ADMIRAL LEAHY CHARGES RATIO OF 5-5-3 UPSET

Hearings Begin On F.D.R.'s Demand For Increase Of Fighting Forces

CHIEF FEARS INVASION

Japan and Italy Refuse To Give Information

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—(UP)—Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, told the house today that Japan and Great Britain have "completely upset" the old 5-5-3 naval ratio and unless the United States increases its navy its fleet will soon be "insufficient security against attack from overseas."

Leahy was the opening witness at hearings on the bill of Chairman Carl Vinson, D., Ga., for an $800,000,000, 20 percent increase in the navy's fighting strength, including three additional battleships and 44 other new combatant vessels.

Leahy said, however, that the increases proposed, which are in line with the recommendations of President Roosevelt, are insufficient to make the navy an adequate aggressor in foreign waters. Such a navy, he pointed out, would require increases "at least three times" as large as those proposed.

Three Years Needed

"A navy cannot be created on the outbreak of war," Leahy said. "The largest ships take at least three years to build."

Even the proposed increases, Leahy contended, would not be sufficient to create a fleet capable of protecting both coasts at once.

Recounting world naval development he said Japan, besides refusing to be bound by the treaty limits, declines to exchange naval information and that Italy also is withholding data.

"At our own doors," said Leahy, "nothing stands in the way of the seizure of the Central American republics except the Monroe Doctrine."

He added that the Monroe Doctrine, to be effective, had to be backed by a strong navy.

Leahy was questioned by Vinson on the aggressive intentions of the navy. The chairman recalled that it had been charged on the house floor that the new larger navy was planned to permit America to "police the world."

"Would the proposed increases (Continued on Page Eight)"

G. W. MATHEWSON ENTERS DENIAL IN FRAUD CASE

Roy Walisa, E. Corwin street, denied two indictments charging receiving and concealing stolen property when arraigned in Common Pleas court, Monday afternoon. He furnished $500 bonds on each charge. He is accused of receiving two hogs, two log chains and a sledge alleged to have been stolen from D. C. Rader of Pickaway township.

Guy Walter Mathewson, 65, of Columbus, denied two indictments charging obtaining money under false pretenses when arraigned before Judge J. W. Adkins in Common Pleas court, Monday. He was unable to furnish bonds of $2,000 on each charge.

The charges resulted from a series of alleged insurance fraud cases. He is charged with obtaining funds from two Salt Creek township residents on insurance policies while representing himself to be William Mason, an agent for a Chicago insurance firm.

Harold Rambo, Clinton and Ohio streets, indicted on a charge of breaking and entering the bulk oil station office of Helvering & Scharenberg, Dec. 18, admitted the charge Saturday afternoon, and was sentenced to one to 15 years in the Mansfield reformatory.

Rambo had denied the charge when arraigned Saturday with a group of other prisoners indicted at the last session of the grand jury.

WOMAN HUNTED AFTER AIDE TO OFFICIAL IS SHOT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—(UP)—Alexandria, Va., police today issued orders for questioning of all suspicious "panhandlers" and broadened their search for a mysterious, red-haired woman to aid them in solving the shooting of Russell Hardy, trust-busting assistant attorney general.

Hardy, wounded in the thigh by an unknown assailant, refused to divulge the name of the woman who police said was his companion a few minutes before the shooting.

He told police that she had nothing to do with the case, and he refused to give any information to help officers locate her.

Special assistant to Attorney General Homer Cummings in the anti-trust suits against automobile firms, Hardy was recovering in a hospital here from the flesh wound in his thigh. He was transferred to a Washington hospital from Alexandria where the shooting occurred in a special ambulance summoned by his wife.

Hardy told police he was shot by a "panhandler" who drew a pistol after being refused a "hand-out." The shot was fired, according to Alexandria detectives, while Hardy's woman companion was in the lobby of the George Mason hotel. The woman vanished after Hardy was hit by the single bullet fired by his assailant.

500 DEAD AFTER TWO AIR RAIDS

Nationalists Pour Shells On Barcelona; Many Victims Children

BARCELONA, Jan. 31—(UP)—Weary gangs of civilian men, impressed into duty in a police raid on cafes, toiled throughout the night and into today digging bodies from debris in the old quarter of Barcelona after two nationalist air raids Sunday.

Officially the death toll, including only bodies found up to 10 o'clock last night, was 153, including 47 children, with 108 wounded, including 43 women. But morgue officials only an hour later said they had 288 bodies. Unofficial estimates put the probable total of deaths at 500.

Six Nationalist airplanes raided the old quarter, with its narrow crooked streets and ancient buildings, at 9 a. m. Sunday. Casualties then were heavy. From all over the city, following the trail of sirens, ambulances, volunteers crowded into the old quarters to aid in removing dead and wounded. Then at 11 a. m. nine more (Continued on Page Eight)

KILLER OF ROSS FACES FEDERAL JURY'S CHARGE

CHICAGO, Jan. 31—(UP)—A grand jury indictment against John Henry Seadlund, confessed kidnaper-slayer of Charles S. Ross, was returned today in the Court of U. S. District Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

The grand jury found that Seadlund "willfully seized Charles S. Ross in Franklin Park, Ill., and abducted him for the purpose of holding him for ransom." The indictment said that Ross was carried "in interstate commerce" overland by means of an automobile to Emily, Minn.

The second count of the indictment said Seadlund "acting with James Atwood Gray did bodily harm to Charles S. Ross."

The defendant transported Charles S. Ross from Emily, Minn., to a place at or near Spooner, Wis., where he did bodily harm to him and inflicted injuries on his body, from which such injuries on Oct. 19, 1937, the said Charles S. Ross did die," the indictment read.

Seadlund's case was assigned to the court of Federal Judge John P. Barnes.

ADMIRAL LEAHY CHARGES RATIO OF 5-5-3 UPSET

Hearings Begin On F.D.R.'s Demand For Increase Of Fighting Forces

CHIEF FEARS INVASION

Japan and Italy Refuse To Give Information

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—(UP)—Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, told the house today that Japan and Great Britain have "completely upset" the old 5-5-3 naval ratio and unless the United States increases its navy its fleet will soon be "insufficient security against attack from overseas."

Leahy said the opening witness at hearings on the bill of Chairman Carl Vinson, D. Ga., for an $800,000,000, 20 percent increase in the navy's fighting strength, including three additional battleships and 44 other new combatant vessels.

Leahy said, however, that the increases proposed, which are in line with the recommendations of President Roosevelt, are insufficient to make the navy an adequate aggressor in foreign waters. Such a navy, he pointed out, would require increases "at least three times" as large as those proposed.

Three Years Needed

"A navy cannot be created on the outbreak of war," Leahy said. "The largest ships take at least three years to build."

Even the proposed increases, Leahy contended, would not be sufficient to create a fleet capable of protecting both coasts at once.

Recounting world naval development he said Japan, besides refusing to be bound by the treaty limits, declines to exchange naval information and that Italy also is withholding data.

"At our own doors," said Leahy, "nothing stands in the way of the seizure of the Central American republics except the Monroe Doctrine."

He added that the Monroe Doctrine, to be effective, had to be backed by a strong navy.

Leahy was questioned by Vinson on the aggressive intentions of the navy. The chairman recalled that it had been charged on the house floor that the new larger navy was planned to permit America to "police the world."

"Would the proposed increases (Continued on Page Eight)"

G. W. MATHEWSON ENTERS DENIAL IN FRAUD CASE

Roy Wallis, E. Corwin street, denied two indictments charging receiving and concealing stolen property when arraigned in Common Pleas court, Monday afternoon. He furnished $500 bonds on each charge. He is accused of receiving two hogs, two log chains and a sledge alleged to have been stolen from D. C. Rader of Pickaway township.

Guy Walter Mathewson, 65, of Columbus, denied two indictments charging obtaining money under false pretenses when arraigned before Judge J. W. Adkins in Common Pleas court, Monday. He was unable to furnish bonds of $2,000 on each charge.

The charges resulted from a series of alleged insurance fraud cases. He is charged with obtaining funds from two Salt Creek township residents on insurance policies while representing himself to be William Mason, an agent for a Chicago insurance firm.

Harold Rambo, Clinton and Ohio streets, indicted on a charge of breaking and entering the bulk oil station office of Helvering & Scharenberg, Dec. 16, admitted the charge Saturday afternoon, and was sentenced to one to 15 years in the Mansfield reformatory.

Rambo had denied the charge when arraigned Saturday with a group of other prisoners indicted at the last session of the grand jury.

Roeses Harvest Potato Crop in Florida Soil

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Phone Ashville 79

Digging potatoes around about Miami, Fla., is now one of the pastimes for those there who are willing to work. Fred Roeses, South Bloomfield, for several years, after he gets his vegetable crop safely marketed here, goes to the Southland in Miami territory and plants a considerable acreage to potatoes. They are ready to dig now and many are at it, including three of the Roeses family of the old village, one mile West of us. A post card just received from Chester Roeses from Miami says there are thousands of acres of potatoes there, and the work of digging has just begun. Both Harry and Ed. Roeses are with him. Also they have a fine crop of tomatoes.

"But all this," he says, "can't beat Ohio." The boys will remain there for a time looking it over and working a little when they feel like it.

Quentin Tosca and wife have returned home from Texas and we are quite sure soon he'll tell us about their trip.

Personal Items

Curtis Teegardin and family were down from Columbus today visiting at the home of D. H. Ebert. Whenever we meet up with Curtis, an inquiry is always made about his father, G. Philip Teegardin, who for several years was an Ashville resident and businessman being with the Ashville Grain Company and for a time cashier of the Citizens Bank, "Phil" as he is commonly called here, was born at the Aaron Teegardin homestead in Madison township, July 11, 1848, so that if he lives until this coming July 11, he will have reached his 90th birthday. He has for several years been a resident of Columbus.

And another whom we must mention as a Madison "youngster", is our only living school teacher, Jerome Peters, St. Paul. He will celebrate his 90th birthday next August 22. Figure the difference in their ages yourself, then you'll know for sure you are right. Mr. Peters taught in the little red school house, West of Marcy, on what was then known as "Loffer Hill" and later "Mt. Kisco," so named by one Solomon Loffer. No, Mr. Peters was not a "licker," the style in those days. Common sense and kindly treatment made all his kiddies along with their parents, like him. He was a good teacher and hard worker.

BURNS IN MIXUP

Two or three days before each Music Hall broadcast, Bob Burns telephones Johnny Scott Trotter, the orchestra leader, and tells him the name of his bazooka number so Trotter can write the accompanying orchestra arrangement. Before a recent broadcast, Bob telephoned Trotter and said, "I'm playing that Merry-Go-Round number this week." Late Thursday afternoon, they got together to rehearse the number and Trotter's orchestra started into "The Merry-Go-Round Broke Down." But Bob in his unprecise way had meant "The Music Goes Round and Round." Since Trotter's arrangements had been made and copied at considerable time and expense, Bob decided to go ahead and play "The Merry-Go-Round Broke Down," even though he didn't know the tune. The rehearsal went off perfectly. On the air, Trotter's orchestra started into "The Merry-Go-Round Broke Down" but Bob forgot and played "Music Goes Round and Round." Bing Crosby covered it up with some fancy ad-libbing.

DEBTOR LEARNS HE POSSESSES VALUED PRINT

MILWAUKEE — (UP) — Raymond H. Wolf, tavernkeeper, had to file in bankruptcy here to learn he was the owner of an authentic print by Albrecht Durer, made 430 years ago and valued by New York art dealers at about $12,500.

The print is of Durer's "Adam and Eve," one of the engravings that caused him to be classified as the most influential artist of the German renaissance.

When Wolf filed in bankruptcy, A. C. Schmidt, a Milwaukee trustee in bankruptcy, took the print to New York. He returned with word that in 1934, during the depression, another original print of the same engraving was sold for $12,500.

Schmidt and Alfred G. Pelikan, director of the Milwaukee Art Institute, traced the history of the rare print. It was brought to this country by a member of the J. P. Morgan family and later brought to Milwaukee by the Plankinton family, they found.

Wolf bought the print a quarter

Fred Roesse, South Bloomfield, for several years, after he gets his vegetable crop safely marketed here, goes to the Southland in Miami territory and plants a considerable acreage to potatoes. They are ready to dig now and many are at it, including three of the Roesse family of the old village, one mile West of us. A post card just received from Chester Roesse from Miami says there are thousands of acres of potatoes there, and the work of digging has just begun. Both Harry and Ed. Roesse are with him. Also they have a fine crop of tomatoes.

"But all this," he says, "can't beat Ohio". The boys will remain there for a time looking it over and working a little when they feel like it.

Quentin Tosca and wife have returned home from Texas and we are quite sure soon he'll tell us about their trip.

Personal Items
Curtis Tegardin and family were down from Columbus today visiting at the home of D. H. Ebert. Whenever we meet up with Curtis, an inquiry is always made about his father, G. Philip Tegardin, who for several years was an Ashville resident and businessman being with the Ashville Grain Company and for a time cashier of the Citizens Bank. "Phil" as he is commonly called here, was born at the Aaron Tegardin homestead in Madison township, July 11, 1848, so that if he lives until this coming July 11, he will have reached his 90th birthday. He has for several years been a resident of Columbus.

And another whom we must mention as a Madison "youngster", is our only living school teacher, Jerome Peters, St. Paul. He will celebrate his 90th birthday next August 22. Figure the difference in their ages yourself, then you'll know for sure you are right. Mr. Peters taught in the little red school house, West of Marcy, on what was then known as "Loffer Hill" and later "Mt. Kisco," so named by one Solomon Loffer. No, Mr. Peters was not a "licker," the style in those days. Common sense and kindly treatment made all his kiddies along with their parents, like him. He was a good teacher and hard worker.

Two Shows to Go?
Another rabbit-tracker snow and the boys at headquarters who know every sure sign there is, say this is the 12th one with only two to go to make the fourteenth for the year. With both February and March ahead yet, looks as if the boys will lose on their sure signs this round.

Ashville
I. O. O. F. Installs
The reorganized I. O. O. F. lodge installed the following officers Saturday evening: Noble Grand, Prince Moore; vice grand, Hoadley Brintlinger; secretary, James Carley; treasurer, Howard Ett; trustees, Claude Sark, E. B. O. Ett, Joseph Pobst.

Ashville
Fox Not Blamed
Bill Pettibone and Ray Kuhlwein, who know their animals all the way from an elephant to a mouse, say that no fox would be guilty of going into a chicken coop and murdering 30 chickens by biting them through the neck. A weasel or mink performs just that way. The boys have seen foxes pick up a chicken or duck by the neck, give it a sling over their back and make off. They will feast on young pigs and lambs and are especially fond of rabbit. Foxes do not play the weasel act by making a wholesale slaughter as that one out at Lanman's.

ENGAGEMENT OF Countess
Geraldine Apponyi of Hungary, whose mother is the former Gladys Virginia Stewart of New York, to Albania's bachelor ruler, King Zog, was made. The countess, 22, and a Catholic, is known in Budapest art circles as the "White Rose". She is en route to Tirana, Albania. King Zog, 42, is a Mohammedan. Measures will have to be taken to overcome the religious obstacle, it was pointed out.

IDEALISTS
SOUTH AMERICAN INTELLECT "Brave New World" CBS, 10:30 p. m. EST.

Entering a new chapter of pan-American history, that of early twentieth-century idealists, "Brave New World" presents in dramatic form the story of Rodo's book, "Ariel," as illustrative of the intellectual life in South America and of the struggle of youth to choose between materialism and idealism.

BURNS IN MIXUP
Two or three days before each Music Hall broadcast, Bob Burns telephones Johnny Scott Trotter, the orchestra leader, and tells him the name of his bazooka number so Trotter can write the accompanying orchestra arrangement. Before a recent broadcast, Bob telephoned Trotter and said, "I'm playing that Merry-Go-Round number this week." Late Thursday afternoon, they got together to rehearse the number and Trotter's orchestra started into "The Merry-Go-Round Broke Down." But Bob in his unprecise way had

DEBTOR LEARNS HE POSSESSES VALUED PRINT

MILWAUKEE — (UP) — Raymond H. Wolf, tavernkeeper, had to file in bankruptcy here to learn he was the owner of an authentic print by Albrecht Durer, made 430 years ago and valued by New York art dealers at about $12,500.

The print is of Durer's "Adam and Eve," one of the engravings that caused him to be classified as the most influential artist of the German renaissance.

When Wolf filed in bankruptcy, A. C. Schmidt, a Milwaukee trustee in bankruptcy, took the print to New York. He returned with word that in 1934, during the depression, another original print of the same engraving was sold for $12,500.

Schmidt and Alfred G. Pelikan, director of the Milwaukee Art Institute, traced the history of the rare print. It was brought to this country by a member of the J. P. Morgan family and later brought to Milwaukee by the Plankinton family, they found.

Wolf bought the print a quarter of a century ago while he still was a printer. He never was sure that it was genuine, however.

The engraving will be sold by the trustee on the order of F. C. Westfahl, referee in bankruptcy.

"LOSS LEADERS"
"BAIT ITEMS"

Are Never Found at Rothman's

Everyday

This old established store with half a century of reputation of honest dealing handles merchandise of known quality and sells it at a price that is consistent with good business. WE NEVER HAVE, WE DO NOT AT THE PRESENT TIME, OR WILL WE EVER ADVERTISE
AN ARTICLE AT A PRICE BELOW WHAT IT COST US IN ORDER TO GET YOU INTO OUR STORE AND ATTEMPT TO SELL YOU
OTHER MERCHANDISE! "Loss leaders" and "bait" items is not our idea of being fair with our customers.

Our low overhead and selling for cash prices only, enables us to sell everything at low, saving prices; we do not offer a few items on which you know the prices are ridiculously low in order to have a convincing effect on you, then more than make up that loss on other merchandise where it is hardly possible for you to see a higher than necessary price has been placed on it. The prices of our merchandise reflect a savings every day, that buying at our store over a period of years means a guaranteed savings of 10 to 20%—and when we have a sale our prices are reduced from these already low levels!

Buying on price alone without thought for quality won't get you very far toward savings. Our store has been built on the strength of quality merchandise, honestly and reputably merchandised—to the end that we now consider this reputation our greatest asset. On the strength of these principles we invite you to become a Rothman customer.

Our prize to the first baby of the month is its first new winter coat.

TWO DOLLARS A WEEK
JUDGE MALCOLM HATFIELD of St. Joseph, Mich., had his interest in the food question aroused by the fact that most of the children brought before him, charged with stealing from stores, were from families on relief. When he asked the parents about it, they told him the children were hungry. The parents didn't like to have their children stealing, but the $2 weekly allowance per person didn't provide enough for them to eat.
So the judge decided to find out for himself. He lived on $2 worth of food for a week, and then reported:
"It was like fasting. I believe that if every member of Congress tried the same thing with his family, they would gain a more sympathetic understanding of the people on relief. I lost four pounds. The only food I could afford was terribly monotonous. I hope I never see a bean again."

VISITORS
OUR little old earth has been having celestial visitors lately. A few weeks ago a tiny planet named Hermes, which whirls around the sun as we do, came within 326,000 miles. That isn't far, as planetary distances are reckoned. Brother Hermes, who was messenger boy in the old Greek heaven, could almost have tossed us a telegram.
Then just a few days ago another fellow-wanderer named Eros, 15 miles in diameter, with just about enough surface on him for one of our western cattle ranches, was near enough to be seen with a small telescope if you knew where to look. He, too, belonged to the ancient Olympic family, being the god of love. It's just as well, perhaps, that he passed on without meddling in our affairs any more than usual. We don't really need him here.

JAPAN'S FEBRUARY POEMS
IT is reported that the empress dowager of Japan has chosen "War Correspondent at the Front" as the February theme for the monthly poetry writing contest held at her palace. Some exquisite lines will be written on this theme and some Japanese poet will win the contest. Yet prose and realism would seem to be more in keeping with the serious and dangerous job of war correspondent in China or in Spain.
There were poets who wrote during the World War about experiences that stirred their souls. But Rupert Brooke, Joyce Kilmer, Alan Seeger and the rest of them were not taking part in formal poetry contests when they wrote the lines they left us. The poetry contests of Japan, with a single theme set on which all entrants work, constitute one of the differences between their culture and ours. Ordinarily we consider it a lovely thing. It is only Big business in the United States undoubtedly is a vast deal decenter today than it used to be. Time was, up to a couple of generations ago, when financial and industrial buccaneering was pretty general in our country. We were young then—and did not realize how serious a national situation our economic manipulators were running us into. If some few folk reached the conclusion that conditions were becoming intolerable right where they lived, they did not stop to fight it out in that locality, they went west, pre-empted homesteads and founded new communities, more to their own liking. Gradually civilized eastern greed followed them up and largely gobbled them, but it was a slowish process; the pioneers were unaware that it was proceeding—until it already was fairly well effected.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round
By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN
ROOSEVELT REVERSED PRICE POLICY
WASHINGTON—Real reason for the President's announcement that he is still trying to raise prices to 1926 levels was not the reason he gave publicly in explanation of the startling statement.
He justified his shift from his recent repeated complaints that prices are too high and retarding recovery, by saying that he had been referring to the prices of raw materials, such as copper. However, it was steel, not copper that prodded him into coming out for 1936 price levels, and behind this, in turn, was a desire to do something for John L. Lewis.
On February 8, the C. I. O. steel union opens negotiations with U. S. Steel on a new contract. The union will seek a renewal of its present wage scale with the argument that steel prices continue at a high peak. But should the price of steel break, the union would almost certainly have to take a wage cut.
The logic of this situation was very vigorously impressed on Roosevelt by Lewis during their conference several weeks ago.
"All this talk about prices being too high," the C. I. O. boss said, "is threatening the country's wage structure. If you reduce prices it is going to come out of the hide of labor. What the country needs is not price cuts but increased purchasing power."
So, despite the opposition of some Brain Trusters, the President went to bat for his biggest vote deliverer.

BIGGEST RADIO STATION
It looks as if Charley Michelson, publicity solon of the Democratic National Committee, will have a chance to earn the salary he has been drawing from Crosley Radio, operators of WLW, Cincinnati, biggest broadcasting stations in the country.
Through a sheer freak of fate, the question of whether its 500,000-watt license shall be renewed has been placed in the hands of WLW's chief enemy on the Federal Communications Commission, George Henry Payne.
About a year ago, Commissioner Payne fired a barrage of embarrassing questions at Powell Crosley, president of the radio company, asking what profits WLW made and why it should enjoy a more privileged status than other stations. Payne at that time was not on the broadcasting division of the FCC, and Crosley never answered his questions.
Now, however, the Commission is rotating its different duties among the Commissioners, and last week it became Payne's sole duty to pass on whether WLW shall have a six months extension of its powerful license.

At the height of the lynching filibuster, Jimmy Roosevelt telephoned Senator Byrnes of South Carolina, one of the bill's bitterest opponents, and inquired:
"Father would like to know what likelihood there is of the filibuster ending."
"Tell him," replied the Senator from North Carolina, "not until the year 2038, unless the bill is withdrawn before then."
when it goes on in startling contrast with a very ugly thing that we distrust and dislike it.

By LEO BRUCE
COPYRIGHT BY LEO BRUCE, RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION
READ THIS FIRST:
Three famous detectives, Lord Simon, M. Picon and Monsignor Smith, are investigating the murder of Mrs. Mary Thurston, middle-aged wife of a retired English physician who has been found slain in bed during a week-end party at the Thurston home near London. Those in the house when Mrs. Thurston retired were her husband, Townsend, the author, Williams, the family lawyer, Strickland, a sportsman, and the servants. Three piercing screams preceded the discovery of the murder. Mrs. Thurston's bed-room door was bolted from the inside and the only open window revealed a 50-foot drop to the ground. In the garden below Townsend found the murder weapon, a Chinese dagger, taken from the Thurston hallway. Mr. Rider, the vicar, a dinner guest the evening of the murder, left the Thurston home shortly before the slaying occurred. Townsend and Mgr. Smith are investigating the Thurston mystery. The three detectives and Sergeant Beef, the local constable, conduct their researches independently. Thurston reveals some of the family history for the benefit of the investigators.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:
CHAPTER 15
THE SILENCE was broken by a movement from Sergeant Beef after Dr. Thurston had said he would give us some of the family history. Rather tactlessly, I thought, at this point Beef pulled open his notebook and made ponderous preparations to write in it. "My wife had been married before," said Thurston, and I started. "I will tell you the story, so far as I know it. She was the only daughter of a Gloucestershire parson." His voice stumbled, but he went on. "I never knew her parents, but I gather that they were very hard-working, rather severe people, devoted to their daughter. She was brought up in a manner which even in those pre-war days would have been considered strange. But she was quite happy, though that may seem strange to the present generation. She worked, as her mother did, in the parish, and learned then, perhaps, to practice the unselfishness which was hers by nature. Indeed, who could imagine her anywhere as being anything but happy and unselfish?"
There was a tense but sympathetic silence. At last Dr. Thurston went on to describe to the parsonage was a rich local landowner, a man very much her senior, who had made a fortune in Birmingham and had recently retired to a Gloucestershire manor. He had lost his wife some years previously, and after he had met Mary a number of times he—in the old-fashioned way—sought permission of her father to ask Mary to marry him. The parson consented, but his wife raised one objection before the matter was mentioned to Mary. For this man, in his late middle age, seemed in every way a desirable husband, except for the fact that he had a son.
"Oh my Lord!" whispered Lord Simon Pimmsoll.
"Mary had never seen this son, and to the best of my knowledge never did see him. The boy had already got a bad name for himself—or at least her first husband said. He did not live with his father in Gloucestershire, and it was understood that he was abroad—though whether he was a mere lad sent on a training ship, or a grown man in the colonies, I do not know. Only his very existence rather perturbed Mary's parents, which is perhaps why she heard even so much of him as she did. Suppose he should return, and cause trouble between Mary and her husband? Suppose he should fall in love with Mary? You must imagine that her parents were simple people whose ideas on such matters were drawn largely from the sentimental novels of the day.
"At all events the difficulty was talked over, and dismissed. You will gather some of the selfishness and unconscious brutality of such arrangements in those days, when I tell you that, so far as I can make out, it was arranged between Mary's parents and her husband that the son should be kept out of the way. He was given an allowance, I believe, and Mary once told me that the last time was that he was thought to be in America. But even then she wasn't sure if it was not Australia."

Thurston was speaking very slowly and thoughtfully. It seemed that he had nerved himself to this recital, and was determined to get through it. But it was easy to see that he was suffering.
"They were married for 10 years," he continued, "and I think that they were fairly happy together. Mary certainly never realized the faults of her first husband. Or of her second husband either, if it comes to that. She was not a woman to find the faults in any human being."
"During the early days of their marriage, Mary lost both of her parents, and one of the few really considerate things her husband did for her was to leave the district of her first home, and move to a house about a mile from here. I first met them when I attended him for influenza, not long after they moved. Then the war came, and Mary's stepson came home to serve, and did so with some distinction. But even when he was on leave he was not asked down to his father's home. Occasionally Mary's husband went up to town to meet him, and spoke rather more kindly of him at this period. But she never met him."
"After the war, the son, like so many sons who had fought, was again a problem. A few years on a private allowance abroad, followed by three or four years of war, do not represent the ideal training for a citizen. He was not a bad boy, but he was a difficult one. He had the normal vices, slightly pronounced, and I don't think he ever cared much for his father. He was put unsuccessfully into a number of jobs, and sent to a number of places. But he had a way of turning up in London. Not an unusual case, I suppose."
"It was after his father had sent him with some finality to Canada that the old man made his will, and in the circumstances I suppose it was fair enough, though not very generous to his son. The young man's small allowance was to be continued, the rest of the fortune was to provide an income for Mary during her lifetime, and, as she died before the son, it was to revert to him. Actually I do not believe that Mary was very much older than her stepson, but she never seemed to her husband a young woman, because in his self-centered view she was his wife, and to be regarded as about his own age. It was not therefore quite such an unfair arrangement in his mind as it may seem to you. He expressed the hope, in his will, that should his wife ever inherit the money he would by then have learned its value."
Again he paused. "You will understand that it is not very pleasant for me to go over all this. But I want to make things as easy as possible for you. And whether it has any bearing on the matter or not, you might feel he had to find it out for yourselves, and so waste time. But I have nearly finished now. I attended my wife's first husband in his last illness. She and I were thrown together a great deal at that time. And those of you who knew her will not be surprised that we were married within a year of her becoming a widow."
Williams murmured something, and Dr. Thurston shifted uncomfortably in his chair. "And now I must touch on something even more intimate," he said. "My wife had an income of nearly £2,000 a year. My own income, apart from the practice which I then had, was considerably, very considerably, less. I am not going into all the complications which follow when a poor man marries a rich woman. But there are points I must explain. First of all, I myself was an interested party in a will of my uncle's, by which I was then expecting shortly to inherit a sum of money rather larger than my wife's fortune. This sum actually came to me about six months ago. It was delayed by some legal difficulty. Secondly, it might be as well for you to know how our private finances were arranged. My wife retained her income absolutely in her own hands, but at her own wish she met all the expenses of this house. My own private expenses were few, and my small income amply sufficed for them. I have inherited the sum I have mentioned, however, I have not allowed my wife to use her money for anything but herself. The rest of the details, such as her own will, you may learn from Mr. Williams."

The investigators were looking up now. It was M. Picon who spoke. "And the stepson?" he queried.
"Has never reappeared. My wife used at one time to worry about him a great deal. She felt that she had taken away what justly belonged to him. She even went to the extent of advertising for him, but without result. You can imagine how concerned she was over anything like that. She was a very generous woman."
Lord Simon Pimmsoll spoke rather uneasily. "You won't mind, Doctor, if we ask you one or two questions?"
"By all means."
"What was the name of Mrs. Thurston's first husband?"
"Burroughs."
"And the village where she was brought up?"
"Watercombe, near Cheltenham."
"And no one has any idea what has happened to this young man?"
"I certainly have not."
M. Picon broke in. "So that, he said, "he might be dead?"
"It is possible," said Dr. Thurston.
"Or, on the other hand, he might be in this house," said Lord Simon.
Dr. Thurston smiled very faintly. "I don't think that is likely. You see, I know everyone here."
"Yes, Doctor. But suppose—of course it is the merest supposition—suppose that this young man had by any chance reappeared. How long, for example, have you known Townsend?" And he glanced without apology at me.
"About three years."
"And Strickland?"
"Rather longer."
"Do you happen to remember how you met Strickland?"
"My wife met him. In town, I believe. She had a good many friends. She asked him down here, and I liked him. Always have done. Irresponsible fellow, but a very good sort!"
"Then Norris, Doctor?"
"Well, he also came here through my wife. I know where she met him, though. It was at the Bagleys, about six miles from here. They make some pretensions towards being literary, I believe, and often have fellows like Norris staying there."
"Then again, the chauffeur. How did he come into your employ?"
"My wife engaged all the servants. She was far more practical than I am in such things." He paused. "But really, you know, Lord Simon, if you're supposing that my wife's stepson could have been in the house, masquerading as one of our friends or employees, I must tell you that I think the idea is too far-fetched. The fellow disappeared years ago."
Lord Simon smiled. "You mustn't mind me, Doctor," he said, "I was born inquisitive."

ABOUT 400 years ago there walked into the lecture hall of the ancient university of Basel, Switzerland, a strange, even fantastic personage, who proceeded to lecture on medicine and medicines in terms that his hearers had never before heard. He said that all the other physicians in the world were ignorant fools and knaves. He said that everything in the old textbooks from which other professors taught was false, and proceeded to burn, in the presence of his audience, the works of Galen and Avicenna. He said that Galen especially erred when he advocated the use of plants as medicine, because the only substances that were truly healing were the minerals—sulphur, mercury and salt.
The new professor's name was Paracelsus, and while we do not agree with all the extreme statements he made, he did us the great service of putting minerals into our therapeutic armamentarium.
Today we make no rules about what we shall use for medicinal purposes, except the rule that it has the property of changing the functions of the body in a beneficial manner.
The way in which different minerals came to be found useful is a fascinating series of stories. Epsom salts, for instance, was so

TWO DOLLARS A WEEK
JUDGE MALCOLM HATFIELD of St. Joseph, Mich., had his interest in the food question aroused by the fact that most of the children brought before him, charged with stealing from stores, were from families on relief. When he asked the parents about it, they told him the children were hungry. The parents didn't like to have their children stealing, but the $2 weekly allowance per person didn't provide enough for them to eat.

So the judge decided to find out for himself. He lived on $2 worth of food for a week, and then reported:

"It was like fasting. I believe that if every member of Congress tried the same thing with his family, they would gain a more sympathetic understanding of the people on relief. I lost four pounds. The only food I could afford was terribly monotonous. I hope I never see a bean again."

VISITORS
OUR little old earth has been having celestial visitors lately. A few weeks ago a tiny planet named Hermes, which whirls around the sun as we do, came within 326,000 miles. That isn't far, as planetary distances are reckoned. Brother Hermes, who was messenger boy in the old Greek heaven, could almost have tossed us a telegram.

Then just a few days ago another fellow-wanderer named Eros, 15 miles in diameter, with just about enough surface on him for one of our western cattle ranches, was near enough to be seen with a small telescope if you knew where to look. He, too, belonged to the ancient Olympic family, being the god of love. It's just as well, perhaps, that he passed on without meddling in our affairs any more than usual. We don't really need him here.

IT is reported that the empress dowager of Japan has chosen "War Correspondent at the Front" as the February theme for the monthly poetry writing contest held at her palace. Yet prose and realism would seem to be more in keeping with the serious and dangerous job of war correspondent in China or in Spain.

There were poets who wrote during the World War about experiences that stirred their souls. But Rupert Brooke, Joyce Kilmer, Alan Seeger and the rest of them were not taking part in formal poetry contests when they wrote the lines they left us. The poetry contests of Japan, with a single theme set on which all entrants work, constitute one of the differences between their culture and ours. Ordinarily we consider it a lovely thing. It is only

World At A Glance
—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Big business in the United States undoubtedly is a vast deal decenter today than it used to be.

Time was, up to a couple of generations ago, when financial and industrial buccannery was pretty general in our country. We were young then—and did not realize how serious a national situation our economic manipulators were running us into. If some few folk reached the conclusion that conditions were becoming intolerable right where they lived, they did not stop to fight it out in that locality, they went west, pre-empted homesteads and founded new communities, more to their own liking. Gradually civilized eastern greed followed them up and largely gobbled them, but it was a slowish process; the pioneers were unaware that it was proceeding—until it already was fairly well effected.

Theodore Roosevelt was the first statesman to call attention to the fact that our frontier was GONE; that there no longer was any place for individual enterprise to find refuge.

"DIRTY WORK" DONE

By that time big business had done its basic "dirty work".

It had its stocks fundamentally watered, its valuations inflated to the bursting point.

Railroads especially were over-capitalized, but so was big business generally.

Corporations were trying to make money at two or three times the rate that they ever had had cash invested in them.

WORSE NOW?

I can remember the crash of 1893—though I was too young to understand it at all fully.

It was terrible, but it had one redeeming feature.

I know a mid-western banker (now very old), who recalls that depression.

"How," I asked him, soon after the 1929 collapse, "does this compare with the '93 bust-up?"

"Well," he said, "I think that the average man was flatter broke in '93 than he is at present."

"But he was just broke. He wasn't in debt. When we began to feel recovery he began to RECOVER. Now, when we begin trying to recover, he has our enormous load of national obligations (of taxation) to reckon with."

OVERCAPITALIZATION

Yes, and of private overcapitalization?

The big corporations resent this suggestion. They say they are NOT overcapitalized.

The railroads assert that all the water was squeezed out of their obligations in '93, when they went into bankruptcy wholesale. Other corporations, of more recent date, deny that they ever WERE over-capitalized.

I doubt it.

TOO MANY SINS?

I do not question that big business WISHES it could get back to earth.

But it has the sins of its grandfathers and great-grandfathers visited upon it. And holders of its securities have big business' progenitors visited on them also.

Back in the 1880's Henry Georgeites were squalling that this was just what would happen to us if we did not mend our ways. It has happened to us, because we did not mend our ways. A couple of Henry Georgeites still linger in political life in Washington—Representatives Robert Crosser of Ohio and Eckert of Pennsylvania.

I should like to hear them holler. It would not do any immediate good, but it would be interesting.

A DIFFICULT TASK

As to President Roosevelt's case?

He is trying to correct conditions whose origin antedate his birth.

Naturally it is difficult.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round
By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

ROOSEVELT REVERSED PRICE POLICY
WASHINGTON—Real reason for the President's announcement that he is still trying to raise prices to 1926 levels was not the reason he gave publicly in explanation of the startling statement.

He justified his shift from his recent repeated complaints that prices are too high and retarding recovery, by saying that he had been referring to the prices of raw materials, such as copper. However, it was steel, not copper that prodded him into coming out for 1936 price levels, and behind this, in turn, was a desire to do something for John L. Lewis.

On February 8, the C. I. O. steel union opens negotiations with U. S. Steel on a new contract. The union will seek a renewal of its present wage scale with the argument that steel prices continue at a high peak. But should the price of steel break, the union would almost certainly have to take a wage cut.

The logic of this situation was very vigorously impressed on Roosevelt by Lewis during their conference several weeks ago.

"All this talk about prices being too high," the C. I. O. boss said, "is threatening the country's wage structure. If you reduce prices it is going to come out of the hide of labor. What the country needs is not price cuts but increased purchasing power."

So, despite the opposition of some Brain Trusters, the President went to bat for his biggest vote deliverer.

BIGGEST RADIO STATION
It looks as if Charley Michelson, publicity solon of the Democratic National Committee, will have a chance to earn the salary he has been drawing from Crosley Radio, operators of WLW, Cincinnati, biggest broadcasting stations in the country.

Through a sheer freak of fate, the question of whether its 500,000-watt license shall be renewed has been placed in the hands of WLW's chief enemy on the Federal Communications Commission, George Henry Payne.

About a year ago, Commissioner Payne fired a barrage of embarrassing questions at Powell Crosley, president of the radio company, asking what profits WLW made and why it should enjoy a more privileged status than other stations. Payne at that time was not on the broadcasting division of the FCC, and Crosley never answered his questions.

Now, however, the Commission is rotating its different duties among the Commissioners, and last week it became Payne's sole duty to pass on whether WLW shall have a six months extension of its powerful license.

WHITE HOUSE INQUIRY
At the height of the lynching filibuster, Jimmy Roosevelt telephoned Senator Byrnes of South Carolina, one of the bill's bitterest opponents, and inquired:

"Father would like to know what likelihood there is of the filibuster ending."

"Tell him," replied the Senator from North Carolina, "not until the year 2038, unless the bill is withdrawn before then."

when it goes on in startling contrast with a very ugly thing that we distrust and dislike it.

A CASE FOR 3 DETECTIVES

By LEO BRUCE
COPYRIGHT BY LEO BRUCE, RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:
Three famous detectives, Lord Simon, M. Picon and Monaghan Smith, investigating the murder of Mrs. Mary Thurston, middle-aged wife of a retired English physician who has been found slain in bed during a week-end party at those in the house when Mrs. Thurston retired were her husband, Townsend, the author; Williams, the family lawyer; Strickland, a sportsman, and the servants. Three piercing screams preceded the discovery of the murder weapon, a Chinese knife, taken from the Thurston hallway. Mr. Rider, the vicar, a dinner guest the evening of the murder, left the Thurston home shortly before the slaying occurred. Townsend and Mgr. Smith are investigating the Thurston gymnasium. The three detectives and Sergeant Beef, the local constable, conduct their searches independently. Dr. Thurston reveals some of the family history for the benefit of the investigators.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 15
THE SILENCE was broken by a movement from Sergeant Beef after Dr. Thurston had said he would give us some of the family history. Rather tactlessly, I thought, at this point Beef pulled open his notebook and made ponderous preparations to write in it.

ABOUT 400 years ago there walked into the lecture hall of the ancient university of Basel, Switzerland, a strange, even fantastic, personage, who proceeded to lecture on medicine in terms that his hearers had never before heard. He said that all the other physicians in the world were ignorant fools and knaves. He said that everything in the old textbooks from which other professors taught was false, and proceeded to burn, in the presence of his audience, the works of Galen and Avicenna. He said that Galen especially erred when he advocated the use of plants as medicine, because the only substances that were truly healing were the minerals—sulphur, mercury and salt.

The new professor's name was Paracelsus, and while we do not agree with all the extreme statements he made, he did us the great service of putting minerals into our therapeutic armamentarium.

Today we make no rules about what we shall use for medicinal purposes, except the rule that it has the property of changing the functions of the body in a beneficial manner.

The way in which different minerals came to be found useful is a fascinating series of stories. Epsom salts, for instance, was so named because a well on Epsom Downs is practically saturated with them. The farmers on the downs thought the well was poisonous because the cattle refused to drink it, but one day a stranger not knowing its reputation, drank some and found that it had immediate cathartic actions. Since then it has been used throughout the world, probably more than any other drug.

Discovers Bromine

In 1826, a pharmacist in Montpellier, France, discovered a brown residue in the salt mined there. He experimented with it and found it was a new element, bromine, which had important physiologic actions in the body as a nerve sedative.

Even the desert regions of the earth—arid and uninviting as they are—yield us valuable mineral drugs. Iodine, one of the best of antiseptics when applied to open wounds, is found in the great nitrate beds of northern Chile, and can be found there only because the rainfall is so scanty that they are not washed away.

Many other mineral compounds justify the work of the old bombastic doctor, Paracelsus, of long ago. We may be glad that he did not turn from medicine, as he threatened to do in his young student days. He had determined to give up the study of physic entirely when his eyes fell upon the words of the Gospel, "They that are whole need not a physician, but they that are sick."

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clending can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Fasting, Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Luther League Play

A three-act comedy entitled "Tea for Tom" will be given at the Lutheran parish house Feb. 8 and 9, under the direction of Glad-den Troutman.

The story is of a deaf old lady who runs a hotel for Summer guests and complains constantly. Among her guests are two young women who decide to change identities and play a joke on two young men who arrive unexpectedly. The boys complicate matters by trying the same thing and makes things worse by falling in love with the wrong girls. One of the boys is an intended victim in the marriage plans of one of the girls' mother. To prevent their own change of names becoming known, one of the boys announces that his chum is really a mild case for a mental home, but that he is not violent, in fact tea is the only thing that soothes him. At every show of affection for the girl of his choice the deaf old lady plies him with tea. Also concerned with the story is a girl who is trying to get a divorce but is not able to make up her mind whether she really wants a divorce; a country detective who has a badge to prove his authority, and a mountaineer, who thinks himself an ideal partner for the deaf old lady.

The cast of characters includes: Mrs. Linder, the deaf old lady and owner of Pine Crest hotel, Miss Jeanette Bower; Pete Kirby, a bachelor who wants to be a benedict, Galen Mowery; Alice Covington, who wants to choose her own husband, Miss Margaret List; Ruth Arnold, her chum, Miss Annabelle Barch; Mrs. Covington, who worships "family"; Miss Dorothy Hal-loway; Mr. Covington, a "yes" man, Walter Eppard; Tom Box-well, who hates tea, George Fischer; Stanley Johnson, who wants what he wants, Eugene Barthelmas; Thelma Oakes, a bride on the run, Miss Eleanor West-en-haver; Lester Brown, who has been told that he is a detective, Gladden Troutman.

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU.
BY BOB BURNS

Half of these stories about picture actors out here in Hollywood being "outs" with each other are about as well founded as the story that got out about two of my uncles down home. They were both pretty old and lived on the same road but they never visited each other.

Finally the people in town got to thinkin' they were bitter enemies and were jest waitin' for the feud to start. As years went by and nothin' happened some of the inquisitive citizens went out with my uncles why he never called on his brother. My uncle says "Well, we're both pretty old and we're both very deaf and even if he heard me knock, I wouldn't be able to hear him say "Come in."

Relieve Their Misery This Proved Way
WHEN your child comes down with a cold, you can't afford to take needless risks. Use the treatment that has been doubly proved for you—Vicks VapoRub. It has been proved by everyday use in more homes than any other medication of its kind—further proved by the largest clinical tests ever made on colds. (Full details in every VapoRub package.) Only Vicks give you proof like this. Vicks VapoRub is direct external treatment. There's no dosing—no risk of spoiling appetite, or disturbing a delicate digestion. VapoRub can be used freely, as often as needed, even on the youngest child. You simply massage VapoRub on throat, chest, and back (as illustrated). Then—to make its long-continued double action last even longer—spread a thick layer on the chest and cover with a warmed cloth. No Long Waiting for Relief to begin... Almost before you finish rubbing, the youngster begins to feel warm and comfortable as VapoRub goes to work direct through the skin like a poultice. At the same time its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body, are carried direct to the irritated air-passages with every breath. This double action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation and coughing—helps break up local congestion. And long after the little one relaxes into restful sleep, VapoRub keeps right on working—hour after hour. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

OAKLAND, Cal., Jan. 31—(UP)—The Winter golf trail led the nation's touring professionals to Sacramento today and the $1,200 check for first place in the Oakland Open was in the wallet of Lighthouse Harry Cooper, the Chico, Calif., master.

Cooper unleashed a great stretch finish to take the Oakland title yesterday with a 72-hole total of 275, five under par for the Sequoia country club course.

On the last hole of the tournament, Cooper needed a par to finish second, a birdie to tie for first, and an eagle to win.

He got the eagle. He drove down the middle on the 453-yard 18th hole and using a spoon, placed his

Fourth Place in County Girl's Race Contested

The race for places in the Pickaway county league's tournament for girls is one of the most heated in years. Ashville, Darby and Walnut are favored to be three of the four competing teams, since each has lost only one game, but the scramble for the fourth position is bringing some fireworks. New Holland and Pickaway are the strong-

WOOSTER SCOTS, MARSHALL GAIN LEAD IN LOOPS

COLUMBUS, Jan. 31—(UP)—Two superlative scoring machines today were firmly entrenched as leaders of the Ohio and Buckeye conference basketball races as the teams turned into the final half of their schedules.

The pace setters were Wooster in the Ohio conference and Marshall in the Buckeye. Both are unbeaten in league competition and top-heavy favorites to take their respective loop crowns.

Wooster vaulted into the top spot in the Ohio conference Saturday when it trounced Ashland 71 to 28. The triumph was the Scots' fifth straight within league ranks.

Nick Frascella, Wooster's ace forward, had another field day as he rolled up 31 points to bring his total for eight contests this season to 207. The Ashland game marked the fourth time during the current campaign that Frascella has scored 30 points or more.

In league games, Ohio University grabbed a narrow 32 to 29 victory over the University of Dayton; and Cincinnati came from behind to defeat Ohio Wesleyan 39 to 27.

Ohio U's veteran combine continued to play far under the standard expected of it and had to rally in the final half to defeat Dayton. A fine performance by Nick Lalich, who secured 15 points, was the principal factor in the Bobcats' triumph.

Wesleyan was in front of Cincinnati 19 to 18 at the half, but couldn't withstand the Bearcats' whirlwind attack in the final period. Billy Rohr, Wesleyan's sophomore guard, was the high point man with 12 markers. Cliff and Eidenbender each garnered 10 for Cincinnati.

In other games Saturday, Muskingum bested Ohio Northern 45 to 31; Otterbein edged Bowling Green 38 to 34; Wittenberg defeated Earlham 55 to 39; Wilmington turned back Denison 50 to 42; and Youngstown won from Hiram 33 to 27.

Ashville knocked off Millersport, one of Fairfield county's best teams, Saturday evening in a 33-28 game played at Ashville. The Harrison township lads led 20-16 at halftime.

The basket-tossing of Reese, Ashville guard, was the highlight of the ball game. Reese connected for six from action and added one charity toss.

Spittler, Millersport forward, went best for his team with 14 dozen points.

Ashville girls lost a 17-23 game to the Fairfielders.

COOPER OILS FIVE ENDS STREAK OF CHILICOTHEANS

Cooper Oils of Commercial Point snapped the winning streak of the Chillicothe Red Cross shoes Saturday night in a game played in the Ross county seat. The previously unbeaten Shoe aggregation fell under a barrage of baskets that saw the game end 38-24.

The Commercial Point boys were led by Basich, a forward, who hit the hoop for 11 points. Fisher, center, was high for the Red Cross quintet with a dozen.

FARR AND BAER MAY MEET FOR GO WITH LOUIS

New Jersey Irishman Gives Up Another Chance At Title Contest

NEW YORK, Jan. 31—(UP)—The complicated heavyweight situation in which three former champions were attempting to regain the crown was simplified somewhat today with the retirement of Ex-Titleholder James Jay Braddock.

The decision of the 32-year-old Jersey Irishman to forsake boxing left Max Schmeling of Germany and Maxie Baer of California the only former champions gunning for the crown now worn by Joe Louis.

Because of Jersey Jim's upset victory over Tommy Farr, British titleholder, 10 days ago, he was an integral part of the complex heavyweight picture and was assured of a $40,000 to $50,000 purse for fighting Farr in a return match. With Braddock stepping aside, however, the way was left open for Promoter Mike Jacobs to sign Farr with Baer. The Irishman had refused to meet Maxie again.

Adamick Liked

"I am going to try and match Farr and Baer for March 11," Jacobs said today. "If they will fight, I'll give the winner a shot at Joe Louis before Joe fights Max Schmeling this Summer." Jacobs indicated if Farr, who already holds a decision over Baer, did not want the match, he would attempt to get Jimmy Adamick, Detroit's sensational young slugger, for the spot.

The unexpected retirement of Braddock closed one of pugilism's most romantic chapters. James J. brought to life a true Ho-tio Alger character when he stepped from the New Jersey relief roles to wrest the title from Baer in June, 1935.

Schmeling, hopeful of becoming the first man ever to regain the heavy crown, scored a 12-round decision over big Ben Foord, South African and former British empire titleholder, before a crowd of 25,000 in Hamburg.

Except for a small cut under his right eye, and a sprained right thumb, the former titleholder emerged from the bout undamaged. His trainer Max Machon said the swollen thumb was not seriously hurt.

"I want one more fight before I meet Louis," Schmeling said, but who it will be and where we will fight is up to Mike Jacobs.

Despite Max's failure to put Foord on the floor, critics agreed he looked like a first rate heavyweight. He was calm throughout, carefully measuring his opponent, and letting his pile-driver right go when the opportunity afforded.

Foord's youth and heart were credited with keeping him off the canvas.

Foord Game

Three times—in the sixth, 11th and 12th rounds—Schmeling had Foord in difficulty, but the South African fought back gamely, blood streaming from his mouth and from cuts over both eyes. The German audience of 25,000 cheered Foord's gameness. In the early rounds he kept Max at bay with a stiff left jab.

COUNTY MIT TOURNAMENT IS SCHEDULED IN MARCH

A tournament for Pickaway county boxers will be held in the C. A. C. gymnasium the first week in March. Earl K. Hussey, E. Franklin street, has announced that he will arrange the matches and handle other details of the show. All county schools in addition to Circleville high are invited to enter teams.

UNLESS MADE No. 12-539

Notice is hereby given that William Spangler has been duly appointed and qualified as Executor of the estate of Mary E. Trimmer late of Pickaway County, Ohio, deceased.

Dated this 29th day of January A. D. 1938.

C. C. YOUNG,
Judge of the Probate Court,
Pickaway County, Ohio
(Jan. 31, Feb. 7, 14) D.

Fourth Place in County Girl's Race Contested

The race for places in the Pickaway county league's tournament for girls is one of the most heated in years. Ashville, Darby and Walnut are favored to be three of the four competing teams, since each has lost only one game, but the scramble for the fourth position is bringing some fireworks. New Holland and Pickaway are the strongest competitors for the position.

The former has won five and lost two games while the latter's mark is five and three.

Ashville in its remaining three games must meet Jackson, that game being Tuesday evening, Washington and Monroe. Jackson girls beat Pickaway last Friday and may prove a difficult hurdle for the Harrison township girls to make.

Darby takes on New Holland and Pickaway in its games remaining on the schedule. Since both of these teams are considered contenders the games will probably be nip and tuck from start to finish.

Walnut, charged with two ties this winter, plays Scioto and Williamsport, neither of which has been doing a lot during the season.

Pickaway plays Perry township and Darby township and must win both to have a chance for a place in the tournament. Pickaway takes on Hamilton township, Franklin county, in a Monday evening card.

Friday night's boys' games pit Scioto against Walnut, Darby against New Holland, Perry and Pickaway, Jackson and Muhlenberg, Washington and Salterburg, and Monroe against Ashville.

Circleville high Tigers take on two opponents following a week's rest. Kingston's fast team, which is now leading the Ross county league, will be met Friday evening on the Kingston court. Frankfort, another speedy aggregation, comes to the Circleville Athletic club court Saturday evening.

ASHVILLE TAKES 33-23 TILT FROM FAIRFIELD CREW

Ashville knocked off Millersport, one of Fairfield county's best teams, Saturday evening in a 33-23 game played at Ashville. The Harrison township lads led 20-16 at halftime.

The basket-tossing of Roese, Ashville guard, was the highlight of the ball game. Roese connected for six from action and added one charity toss.

Spitler, Millersport forward, went best for his team with a dozen points.

Ashville girls lost a 17-23 game to the Fairfielders.

COOPER'S GREAT FINISH WINS OAKLAND'S PRIZE

OAKLAND, Cal., Jan. 31—(UP)—The Winter golf trail led the nation's touring professionals to Sacramento today and the $1,200 check for first place in the Oakland Open was in the wallet of Lighthouse Harry Cooper, the Chicago, Mass., master.

Cooper unleashed a great stretch finish to take the Oakland title yesterday with a 72-hole total of 275, five under par for the Sequoyah country club course.

On the last hole of the tournament, Cooper needed a par to finish second, a birdie to tie for first, and an eagle to win.

He got the eagle. He drove down the middle on the 453-yard 18th hole and using a spoon, placed his

FARR AND BAER MAY MEET FOR GO WITH LOUIS

New Jersey Irishman Gives Up Another Chance At Title Contest

NEW YORK, Jan. 31—(UP)—The complicated heavyweight situation in which three former champions were attempting to regain the crown was simplified somewhat today with the retirement of Ex-Titholder James Jay Braddock.

The decision of the 32-year-old Jersey Irishman to forsake boxing left Max Schmeling of Germany and Maxie Baer of California the only former champions gunning for the crown now worn by Joe Louis.

Because of Jersey Jim's upset victory over Tommy Farr, British titleholder, 10 days ago, he was an integral part of the complex heavyweight picture and was assured of a $40,000 to $50,000 purse for fighting Farr in a return match. With Braddock stepping aside, however, the way was left open for Promoter Mike Jacobs to sign Farr with Baer. The Irishman had refused to meet Maxie again.

Adamick Liked

"I am going to try and match Farr and Baer for March 11," Jacobs said today. "If they will fight, I'll give the winner a shot at Joe Louis before Joe fights Max Schmeling this Summer." Jacobs indicated if Farr, who already holds a decision over Baer, did not want the match, he would attempt to get Jimmy Adamick, Detroit's sensational young slugger, for the spot.

The unexpected retirement of Braddock closed one of pugilism's most romantic chapters. James J. brought to life a true Ho-tio Alger character when he stepped from the New Jersey relief roles to wrest the title from Baer in June, 1935.

Schmeling, hopeful of becoming the first man ever to regain the heavy crown, scored a 12-round decision over big Ben Foord, South African and former British empire titleholder, before a crowd of 25,000 in Hamburg.

Except for a small cut under his right eye, and a sprained right thumb, the former titleholder emerged from the bout undamaged. His trainer Max Machon said the swollen thumb was not seriously hurt.

"I want one more fight before I meet Louis," Schmeling said, but who it will be and where we will fight is up to Mike Jacobs.

Despite Max's failure to put Foord on the floor, critics agreed he looked like a first rate heavyweight. He was calm throughout, carefully measuring his opponent, and letting his pile-diver right go when the opportunity afforded. Foord's youth and heart were credited with keeping him off the canvas.

Foord Game

Three times—in the sixth, 11th and 12th rounds—Schmeling had Foord in difficulty, but the South African fought back gamely, blood streaming from his mouth and from cuts over both eyes. The German audience of 25,000 cheered Foord's gameness. In the early rounds he kept Max at bay with a stiff left jab.

DISCONTINUING TRUMPS

TRUMPS HAVE more purposes than merely to constitute trick takers and knock off losers. They are absolutely essential, in some hands, to furnish entries for some other suit which is needed to get discards of losers opposite them. When this condition prevails, it is well to discontinue trump leads for at least one round until the side suit is set up.

won and played another club for which South had no trump, and was consequently set one trick.

South's correct play was to have led only two rounds of trumps, after winning the second trick. A shift should then have been made to a heart. If a trump was led, he could win and clear the hearts at once, while still retaining a trump for a club ruff.

If the opponents led a club instead of a trump, the declarer would have been in position to ruff in his hand. He could then have given up a heart and ruffed the return club. A diamond to the A would have enabled declarer to lead the spade Q to take East's last trump.

Heiress Born to Throne of Holland

ute buttered rusks (buns) spread with sweetmeats to the 4,000 families of the Soestdyk area.

Colonies Rejoice

There was rejoicing through most of the world. Holland has colonies 63 times the area of her own little 12,579 square miles. Warships and artillery batteries fired salutes in all parts of the empire, at Guiana down on the South American coast; in the Caribbean islands; in Borneo with its head hunters; in the exotic islands of the South Seas.

In all these countries and climates, flags and bunting, long ready, were hung from houses and buildings, and bonfires built weeks ago were made ready for lighting at dusk.

As at the Hague, the capital, soon after the birth today, mounted heralds rode out from the white palace here, the horses' hoofs silent on the straw thickly covering the highway, to read a royal proclamation of the birth, written in blue ink on orange colored paper.

The airplanes, fluttering leaflets, stayed carefully outside the 3 1/2 mile forbidden zone around the white palace, in order to prevent any noise that might disturb the crown princess.

The people seemed no less joyous because today's baby was a girl. Not since the death of Queen Wilhelmina's step brother, Alexander, in 1884 had there been a male heir to the throne. Queen Wilhelmina ascended the throne as a girl of 10 in 1890. Under her reign Holland had remained prosperous and peaceful during all the international crises of nearly 50 years, through the World War—and was arming today to challenge anyone that might seek to make the Netherlands a highway to war. The baby is only the second royal one since Queen Wilhelmina's own birth in 1890.

Thus there was more than the usual measure of rejoicing today that Princess Juliana, herself destined to be queen, had provided an heir to make the succession more certain.

Here at Soestdyk the salute was fired sufficiently far from the palace to make sure that the crown princess would not be disturbed. Her baby princess was taken soon after its birth to a small cradle-basket in the palace nursery, where Princess Juliana in the last hours before the ordeal of birth had finally approved arrangements.

The baby becomes a princess of Orange Nassau Ju Lippe Biesterfeld, thus combining the names of her mother's and father's houses. She descends, on her mother's side from Otto, count of Nassau-Eilegen, who died in 1290, and on her father's from Bernhard, noble seigneur of Lippe, who ruled his feudal holdings in 1123.

It was noted that the baby was born on the last day of the month. Queen Wilhelmina was born on the 31st of August, 1890, and Princess Juliana on April 30, 1909.

The proclamation which the heralds read today, and the airplanes dropped, was brief.

It was from Queen Wilhelmina: "Fellow citizens: it is with deep felt joy that we proclaim that today, the 31st of January 1938, through the grace of God has been born a princess of Orange Nassau Ju Lippe-Biesterfeld. Hereby the heart's desire of all Netherlands people has been realized."

As the heralds ended reading the proclamation, at each halt they shouted:

"Long live the royal family!" and the cry was taken up by the people surrounding them.

After the formalities of the official proclamation, the court obstetrician and court physician announced jointly that they regarded the condition of the crown princess and her baby as satisfactory.

It was learned that Princess Juliana's four maternity nurses laid her baby in her arms for a few moments after the birth. She looked at it and smiled. Then they took it to its nursery, where it fell at once asleep.

Leahy replied that while he was uncertain what was meant by the phrase "policing the world," in his opinion the increases were not sufficient to carry on aggression against any foreign naval power. ## THREE GO ON TRIAL IN HOLDUP MURDER OF TWO

SPRINGFIELD, Jan. 31—(UP)—Three men went on trial for their lives today in Clark county Common Pleas court—the first such murder trial in the county's history.

The defendants are Harry B. Dingleline and his son, Henry, of Springfield, and Harry Chapman, of Chicago, who were arrested after Patrolman Martin Randolph and Deputy Sheriff Edward Furry were killed in a gun battle at Crystal lake following a holdup last Sept. 3.

planes swept overhead and bombed the same quarter.

This time rescue workers were caught. Long after the planes had gone Red Cross workers and stretcher bearers could be seen wandering about the ruined street, dazed and bleeding. As they recovered their senses, they bandaged each other and went back to work.

In an official communique, the government said that the raiding planes came from the direction of the Balearic islands. It was asserted that one of the planes in the second raid was hit by an anti-aircraft shell and fell 12 miles from the coast. Other planes lost speed, it was asserted, and "undoubtedly" had been hit.

It was the worst raid of many on Spain's chief industrial city, and its most populous. A high police official said he believed that the death toll might even reach 1,000.

Police said that buildings struck were exclusively non-military ones and that the victims were all civilians.

As the heralds ended reading the proclamation, at each halt they shouted:

"Long live the royal family!" and the cry was taken up by the people surrounding them.

After the formalities of the official proclamation, the court obstetrician and court physician announced jointly that they regarded the condition of the crown princess and her baby as satisfactory.

It was learned that Princess Juliana's four maternity nurses laid her baby in her arms for a few moments after the birth. She looked at it and smiled. Then they took it to its nursery, where it fell at once asleep.

INMATES FEWER, COST AT COUNTY HOME IS HIGHER

Decrease in inmates at the County home during 1937 caused an increase in the average per capita cost, the report of H. E. Mowery, superintendent, filed with the county commissioners, Monday, reveals.

The net per capita cost for 1937 was $232.32 as compared with $207.56 in 1936 and $194.65 in 1935. Daily average number of inmates during the last year was 30 men and 12 women. In 1936 the average was 52 persons.

Expenses at the home last year amounted to $10,148.12 and receipts, exclusive of funds from taxation, $1,390.28. Approximately $1,000 from the receipts was realized from the 160-acre farm, of which 100 acres are under cultivation. In 1936 the expenses of the institution were $10,122.

The report shows 28 men and 13 women were in the home the first of the year. During the year 17 men and three women were received. Thirteen men and three women were discharged and there were two deaths, one man and one woman. The enrollment of the home at the present time is 44, including 30 men and 14 women.

The county home property is reported at $118,700, including land $12,000, buildings $99,000, furniture $1,500, machinery $2,000, stock $1,200, and agricultural equipment and tools $3,000.

ADMIRAL LEAHY 500 DEAD AFTER CHARGES RATIO TWO AIR RAIDS OF 5-5-3 UPSET

Leahy replied that while he was uncertain what was meant by the phrase "policing the world," in his opinion the increases were not sufficient to carry on aggression against any foreign naval power. "If these increases were authorized," asked Rep. Melvin J. Maas, R., Minn., "would we be able to wage an aggressive war against a foreign power?"

"We would not," Leahy replied.

THREE GO ON TRIAL IN HOLDUP MURDER OF TWO

SPRINGFIELD, Jan. 31—(UP)—Three men went on trial for their lives today in Clark county Common Pleas court—the first such murder trial in the county's history.

The defendants are Harry B. Dingleline and his son, Henry, of Springfield, and Harry Chapman, of Chicago, who were arrested after Patrolman Martin Randolph and Deputy Sheriff Edward Furry were killed in a gun battle at Crystal lake following a holdup last Sept. 3.

This time rescue workers were caught. Long after the planes had gone Red Cross workers and stretcher bearers could be seen wandering about the ruined street, dazed and bleeding. As they recovered their senses, they bandaged each other and went back to work.

In an official communique, the government said that the raiding planes came from the direction of the Balearic islands. It was asserted that one of the planes in the second raid was hit by an anti-aircraft shell and fell 12 miles from the coast. Other planes lost speed, it was asserted, and "undoubtedly" had been hit.

It was the worst raid of many on Spain's chief industrial city, and its most populous. A high police official said he believed that the death toll might even reach 1,000.

Police said that buildings struck were exclusively non-military ones and that the victims were all civilians.
